JOHN REDNE
Belleville, Sept. 10, 1886.

The Upper Canada Bankrupt Law.

This Act says the Montreal Commercial, is in reality a revival in effect of the Bankrupt Law, without a single provision for the protection of the creditor. Two short clauses will destroy hundreds of thousands of pounds of indebtedness and enable the Upper Canada Trader to criminalize creation with perfect impunity. We deny that it is within the power of the Legislature to take from any man his property; it has the right to restrain the creation of debt.

the creditor in the employment of the al machinery it has created for the p ecution of defaulters, where the credit generally are parties; but it has no authority to declare that the indebtedness A to B, which is B's property, shall be discharged by the payment of anything other than its face, without his consent. Power over his own property is a natural right inherent in the possessor; liberty to sue its recovery a statutory consequence or repeal; but that which the Legislature did not give, which owes nothing of its existence to it for the protection which it was created, it cannot take away.

The Upper Canadian can laugh at to test the legality of the Act; and next to procure its repeal.

TIGHT BOOTS.—Paul Stillman, one of the best mechanics in New York, dies the 4th instant, from an extraordinary cause. An injury to his foot occasioned by a tight boot worn but two hours, minutes in mortification. Amputation followed by a general, and at last prostration.

ELOPEMENTS.—No fewer than three couples have been in custody in Enniskillen within about a week, and in each case the master's daughter had eloped with the servant man. In one there was a fine boat. A girl named McGuire, from near Trillick, eloped with her father's servant, came to Ballinacallard, and misadventure equaled into this town, thence to Monaghan.

On Wednesday the 17th instant, a general meeting of the shareholders in the company was held at the London Tavern. Thomas Baring, Esq., M. P., in the chair.

Sir C. P. Roney, the Secretary, submitted a report, which contained the following

The whole of the capital represented by the A shares and bonds of the company has been called up. Its total amount at present is £3,852,400. Of this £3,488,660 has been received. Installments have been sent to Canada to fulfil the 2,822 shares upon which the first call remains unpaid. The certificate in favor of the English and Canadian contractors for railway works amount to £354,630. The section of the Rail

from Quebec to St. Thomas, 40 miles in length, was opened on the 3rd of December last, and that from Montreal to Brockville, 125 miles in length, was completed on the 19th of November. The Directors are informed that the communication between Brockville and Toronto, a distance of 210 miles, will be ready for opening at the beginning of next month, which is a much earlier period than originally fixed. The length from Toronto to Guelph, 62 miles, was completed on the 10th of November.

to west to Guelph, 63 miles, was open on the 1st July last, and the receipts had within six weeks of the opening, given return of £20 per mile per week, in business only. The completion of length from Guelph to Stratford, miles, will take place at the same time as the opening between Brockville and Toronto. The total length of the Grand Trunk Railway that will then be in operation will be 853 miles. The only work under the existing contracts then unfinished will be the Victoria Bridge: 7200 ft. of the main span, 100 ft. of the two abutments, and 9 piers out of the al number of 24, will be finished to ube level by the close of the summer.

The Act of the Provincial Parliament, recently passed, affords a prospect of relief to the company, not only by postponing the first charge of the Government, but also as giving to it a direct interest in the prosperity of an undertaking which it originated. The Act has rendered necessary some modifications in the contract for the construction of the Victoria Bridge. These have been embodied in a supplemental agreement with the English company.

All these shall be found, but the subject—American Slavery—yet they are as widely dissimilar as any two books can be. In Dred the author discusses the monstrous and degrading and demoralizing effects of the "peculiar institution" on the enslaved; in "Dred" she shows the demoralizing and degrading effects upon the white race. In the one, she is in the whites, as in the blacks, it smothers free thought, free speech, free aspiration; it supplies justice, perverts its mission, corrupts its motives, and makes the whole of society with an enfolding disease—a loathsome moral leprosy.

In comparing the merits of the two works, it is not the province which is superior,—both are so similar in their result, and yet so different in their conception and composition. If, in the latter work, it is not so different in its in powers, raised up for oppressed people; he pondered on the nail of Jael, the good woman who killed the cruel Canaanite, and thrilled with fierce joy as he read the Psalmist, with his two strong arms, pulled the chariot wheels round the neck of the victor, who welcomed his triumphant persecutors in one grave with himself.

But the things which he daily traversed, these things entered deep into his soul. Cut off from all human companionship, he was alone with his Maker, and his face, there was no recurrence of every-day and prosaic ideas to check the current of the imagination. The words of the prophet of the old Saxon heath the Bible has thrown out its rods with an all-pervading energy, so that the whole of the world is to be said to rest on soil held by its fibres. Even in cold and misty England, armies have been defeated, and cities have been taken, by the parable force and deliberate value which it breathes into men. But, when this Oriental and Egyptian prophet, who dwelt in the fiery soil of a tropical heath, it bursts forth with an unscalable ardor of growth.<sup>39</sup>

Meacham's Institute by which the room will be occupied on Monday evenings, the Association will be held on Tuesday evening.

The following question will be discussed on Friday Evening next: "Is Phrenology a Science?"

✧ We direct attention to the advertisement of A. E. Smith's "Electric Oil." An employer of the "Electric Oil" in cases of chronic and acute complaints with the most wonderful results. By one application, he has seen a cure. Again permanently cured, and a chronic swelling of a dangerous and intractable character, has relented by the same remedy. We believe there is no quackery about this Medicine.
